

Annie Pham

Teaching Since	2008
Courses Taught at Musica Academy	Private Piano, Yamaha Group classes
Teaching Locations	NW
Music Qualifications	Pursuing a Bachelor of Music Performance (Ambrose University)  Music Performance Diploma (Mount Royal University)

Summary and other Accomplishments

Annie graduated from Mount Royal University with a Music Performance Diploma in Classical Piano in April, 2012. She is currently in her last year completing her Bachelor of Music Performance in Classical Piano at Ambrose University. She studied with Dmitri Nesterov, who won the Honens International Piano Competition in 1992. She has achieved many awards and scholarships throughout her music education, including the Harvard Broadcasting Music Scholarship and the Ginny Paterson Music Bursary in Piano.

Annie was blessed with perfect pitch, facilitating her to excel in every musical genre. Although she is classically trained, Annie easily improvises and loves playing pop and modern music. She has performed on national television in Vietnam and on many stages in Canada.

Annie is a very motivated and patient instructor who is committed to enriching young minds with a thorough music education. She always tries her best to create different ways of teaching to make practising become more fun and enjoyable. She provides students with sufficient amount of homework to ensure that they will get the best and most effective result from learning. Many of her students achieved First Class Honours with Distinction in their Royal Conservatory examinations, while others have won gold medals in the Kiwanis Music Competition. Some of her students have also begun their career as piano teachers. She has a strong passion for teaching music and is looking forward to meeting her new students.